Large field of candidates ready to take to field in November 8 election

More than 90 candidates will compete for seats in ten Haliburton County municipalities -- the race for seats on public school board is heating up

by MARTIN BIEFER
Echo Editor

A large field of candidates has embarked upon campaigns for the upcoming municipal elections in Haliburton County.

In all, some 95 candidates are vying for positions as reeves, deputy-reeves and councillors in the ten municipalities within the county. A further 19 candidates are hoping to become trustees on the Haliburton County Board of Education, and two are after a separate board seat.

For quite a few candidates, the race is already over -- no one decided to try and run against them before the 5:00 p.m. deadline Monday. Here then is the field of candidates who will go before voters November 8.

Anson, Hinton and Minden

Incumbent reeve Lloyd Walker will face Lyle McKnight in the battle to become reeve. Another contest is shaping up for the deputy-reeve position between incumbent Doug Pritchard and Ed Pergolas.

Eight candidates will vie for three councillors' seats. Candidates include incumbent Larry Cummins, Dwight Thomas, Pat Burk, David Michael Stevens, Mike Kitchman, Bern Berry, Ross Warburton and Gary Kenney.

Brian Sisson will face Bonnie-Lee Berry in the battle for a Haliburton County Board of Education trusteeship.

Bicroft

There are no incumbents in Bicroft -- this year marks the first time elections have ever been held in the municipality. It had been an improvement district, with an appointed chairman and directors.

Former director William G. Howe has been acclaimed as the first reeve in the municipality. Robert Riddell, Ainsley L. Dickinson, Edward A. Baker, Acie O. Easton, D. Ross Bailey, W. John Todd and Jim Fraser will compete for four councillors' seats.

Cardiff

Mack Peters has been acclaimed the reeve of Cardiff township. There will be a contest for deputy-reeve, however, as Ross E. Duncan and Elmer Hughey square off. Incumbents John Irwin and Paul Slighte, as well as Debbie Donaldson, Maurice Bradley, and Fritz Gillick, will attempt to gain the three councillors' seats available.

Cricket has been acclaimed as reeve of the Haliburton County Board of Education. Linda Mumford and William J. Hulton will run for the position of separate school trustee for the combined areas of the township of Cardiff and municipality of Bicroft.

Dysart et al

Veteran politician Murray Fearrey will be unopposed this year, and will rerun as reeve of the municipality of Dysart et al. Gary McKnight has been acclaimed deputy-reeve.

John Parish has been acclaimed councillor in Ward Two, and Sid Cooper was the only candidate to run in Ward Four.

The biggest race in the municipality will be in Ward One, where a total of five candidates will try for the councillor's seat. Pat Kennedy, Bill Davis, Dorothy Baker, Linda Beachli and Bird and Glen Madill are after three seats on Glamorgan council.

Julie Hunter has been acclaimed as a member of the Renfrew County Board of Education's board of trustees.

Lutterworth

This year's warden, N. Ronald Gambell, has a battle at the polls ahead of him. He will be challenged by Ronald Caney for reeve.

Glynne Lewis has been acclaimed deputy-reeve, and Allan Scott, Bill Valentine, and Bill Prentice are back as councillors by acclamation. Cheryl Murdoch has been

Sherborne, McClintock and Livingstone

No one has come forward to oppose Dalton "Mac" MacDonald, and the former deputy-reeve has been acclaimed reeve of the township.

An interesting three-way race for deputy-reeve has begun. Fran Gower, a councillor, Don Shortreed and Kel Stone have entered the fray.

Marilyn Jarvis, Victor Furnandiz, incumbent Joyce McKey and Ed Vallance will joust for three councillors' seats.

Incumbent David McDonald will face David Villard for the township's trusteeship on the Board of Education.

Snowdon

Incumbent Robert Vick will face John Francis in the race for reeve. Three candidates -- Fred Simmons, Walter McMillan, and Dwain Wruth -- are trying for the deputy-reeve's seat.

Bill Mitchell, Bryan Neville, Jack Hills and Ron Burk will attempt to gain a councillor's seat -- there are three left -- and Burt Smith and George Simmons will attempt to be the township's Haliburton County Board of Education trustee.

Stanhope

Harry Davis (reeve) and Elgin Stouffer (deputy-reeve) have been acclaimed for the coming term.

Six candidates will vie for three councillors' seats. They are incumbents Elvin Johnson and Dale MacDonald, Tony Aymong, Penny Googh, Ann Barker and David E. Stirrett.

Leroy Eager and Dorothy Kinsman have been acclaimed as the township's two trustees for the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Big battle shaping up in Dysart Ward One

R.J. Bishop Jr. have all announced their intention to run.

Lloyd Leadbeater will face Bill Smith in Ward Three, and R. Glen Hodgson and Rolly Letourneau will compete for the Ward Five seat.

Seven candidates will scramble for four Dysart trusteeships on the Haliburton County Board of Education. Lynn Craigmyle, Blair Pierce, Darrell Stamp, Leonard Salvatori, Paul Wilson, Nancy Stinson and Timothy Woods are the candidates.

Glamorgan

George MacDuff and Robert McCausland will be the two candidates for reeve here. B. Jane Franklin has been acclaimed as deputy-reeve.

Larry Hunter, Bill Williams, James Manley, Beverly MacDuff, Dallyn Pickens, Cecil Osborne, Glen acclaimed a trustee for the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Township clerk Wayne Hughes reports that a liquor plebiscite will appear on the ballot. At issue is whether or not to allow licensed dining lounges in Lutterworth township.

Monmouth

Keith Tallman will return unopposed for another term as reeve. Carman Coumbs, the incumbent deputy-reeve, faces Harry E. Clark at the polls.

Seven candidates will compete for three council seats. Incumbent Alan Revell, Gary Stoughton, Jim Detterling, Larry Strong, Glen Storey, incumbent Barry Dunford and Pearl Foster made their candidacy known by Monday's deadline.

Ross Anderson has been acclaimed as trustee for the Haliburton County Board of Education.

Store owners prepare to switch to metric

Food store owners in Canada now have to make the big change from imperial to metric measure -- but many have managed to get around having to purchase brand new weight scales.

According to Mike Easton of Haliburton's Red and White, the federal government is helping "smaller stores" by converting their old mechanical scales to metric measure. He said he will be converting his newer scales shortly.

A government press release issued last week says most mechanical scales now in use "can be converted to metric...some for as little as $125."

There are several ways to convert the scales. The cheapest method is to simply attach new metric weight bands. The metric indications are attached to existing price charts, and the old prices are blanked out.

Another way to switch is to purchase a computing price chart. That costs about $400, according to Metric Commission of Canada reports.

All scale conversion parts are duty free and tax exempt -- and the costs incurred can be claimed as expenses for income tax purposes, the commission advises.

There are some problems.

Most companies no longer service the old mechanical scales because they've switched to newer, electronic types.

As Easton points out, the government's advice is aimed at those businesses still using the old mechanical scales. The commission advises that any conversions must be done by qualified scale mechanics -- and must be certified accurate.

There were a lot of happy faces Saturday night in Minden as Warden Ron Gambell was subjected to a friendly roasting by his county council cohorts. Most Haliburton County councillors were in attendance at the banquet, which was held at the Minden Community Centre. Here the warden (at the extreme left) gets a little of his own back from some friendly hecklers.

Seven candidates battling for trusteeships on the HCBE in municipality of Dysart et al

Haliburton's Paul Wilson is off and running as a candidate for the post of school board trustee.

Wilson said Friday he will be running for a trustee's seat on the Haliburton County Board of Education in this fall's municipal election. He has sat on the board for the past year after being appointed to a seat left vacant by Earl Cooper.

"I've become quite interested in the board after the year I've spent there," he said. "I've felt I've contributed...and I've always taken an interest in (the county board) since I went through it myself."

Wilson has lived in Haliburton "most of my life". After going through some of his elementary and all of his secondary education here, he went on to post-secondary studies at the University of Toronto. A civil engineer and Ontario land surveyor, Wilson is at present a partner in the firm of Bishop and Wilson Limited.

He is married, and has two children.

On Monday, 20-year-board veteran Len Salvatori announced he would be seeking another term of office.

Salvatori, a life-long resident of Haliburton, has of course been involved in minor hockey and scouting for the last 30 years. He's married and has three children.

He said he has always been interested in working with kids.

The key education issue for 1982, he said, has to be restraint. "We've got to be able to cut our costs and maintain a good education system," he explained. The provincial government's restraint policies will mean some belt-tightening on the Haliburton County Board of Education, added Salvatori.

He noted that the board's special education program is in place and ready to go. "It's a very costly program," said Salvatori, but the board has done a "super job" setting up the groundwork for it.

Restraint, special education seen as important issues by most candidates

The key, he stressed, "is restraint...we've got to try and keep taxes down, since the board serves everyone -- not just those who go to school".

Four years ago, Nancy Stinson ran for the post of school board trustee -- on a bet. Now the Haliburton resident is seeking re-election once again.

"I went in on a bet...but I've stayed in. I really enjoy it," said Stinson as she announced her candidacy Monday. She said she hopes to continue work on the Haliburton County Board of Education's special education program, required under provincial Bill 82.

"I'd like to help finish off a lot that's been started," she said. "The board has progressed well... ideas have changed a lot in the last four years."

"I think we can accomplish a lot, and try to do the best for the children," said Stinson, a mother of three.

She said she likes seeing more people running this year.

Pat Kennedy wants to try his hand at municipal politics.

Dr. Blair Pierce of Haliburton is entering the municipal election fray in search of a seat on the Haliburton County Board of Education. Although Dr. Pierce has not served on the board before, he is no stranger to boardrooms. "I have experience on hospital boards, and medical committees, so I am familiar with the kinds of processes that go on there," he said. Like school boards, hospital boards must deal with provincial ministries -- almost on a day to day basis, he pointed out.

Seeking election to the board is something Dr. Pierce "has been considering for quite a while." He added that he "has been concerned about the way in which some (board) decisions have been made."

As well, he foresees some problems ahead for the board, due to the provincial funding restraints and the need to move ahead on required special education programs.

"I've always been interested in being on the school board...but I now have children approaching the age where they will enter the school system," said Dr. Pierce.

"I feel I would do a good job," added Kennedy, who is married and has two kids. "I seek everyone's support on November 8."

He said the new five-ward system in Dysart et al will have "its pros and cons... there will be better representation from all the areas -- but the meetings may take longer."

First-ever private Ontario forest owners association may be established right here in Haliburton County

If all goes according to plan Haliburton County may have the first forest owners' association in the province of Ontario.

A meeting will be held October 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the PineStone Inn near Haliburton, with the purpose of electing a president and four directors.

The introductory speech will be given by Dan Buhl of Kennis Lake, a private forester for Canadian Haliburton Estates, Incorporated. The proposed group's legal advisor is Dave Bishop of Haliburton.

In a press release issued last week Buhl said the association plans "close cooperation with the Ministry of Natural Resources, the municipalities, and the timber-using industry in the area." As well, it's hoped new markets will be established, and the county's economic development committee aided by the new group.

Buhl stated that "Quebec, the USA and Europe have long benefited from such forest owners' associations -- and Haliburton County, with 69 per cent of its forests privately owned, is ready for it."

For more information (and to nominate someone for a post) Buhl can be reached at 754-2941.

Bank prime rate drop felt in Haliburton

Last Thursday's dramatic dip in the prime lending rate has caused both bank managers in Haliburton to react with cautious optimism.

The prime rate fell to 13.75 per cent...and by Friday most chartered banks had begun to lower their mortgage rates. The Bank of Nova Scotia's rate fell to just 14.25 per cent Friday -- the lowest in two years.

Bank of Montreal manager John Sutherland said Monday that there "has been quite a nice increase in activity" at his branch. "The lower rate is creating more interest...and perhaps people will be loosening their wallets a little bit," he said.

Walt Prime of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce said his mortgage officer "had received a few inquiries" after rates went down. However, he said interest rates and prices are still high, products are still expensive, and many people are still unemployed.

He said it was too early to say whether the prime rate drop was really an indication of better economic times ahead.

Sutherland said the outlook among bankers for the next five or six months ahead will be "optimism and reserve."

"We may be on the way to recovery...but we won't know until May or June," he added. Interest rates could go back up again.

He predicted consumer loans will not go down as quickly as mortgage rates, and noted that credit card interest rates are fixed.

Ron Gambell is roasted at Warden's Banquet

by MARTIN BIEFER
Echo Editor

Although Haliburton County warden Ron Gambell may have hoped for a quiet staid dinner Saturday night he certainly got more than he bargained for.

Before a crowd of 120 people the outgoing warden was given a friendly roasting by county councillors, county staff, and many others.

The warden's receding hairline (he claimed it was a sign of virility), his used-car business, and the "fact" that he had "come to Haliburton County acting in the role of the cottager -- to destroy these local hicks" were just some of the subjects brought up over the course of the evening.

The annual banquet was held this year at the Minden community centre. Guests at the head table included the warden, Dysart reeve Murray Fearrey and his wife Darlene (the reeve was an excellent master of ceremonies), MP Bill Scott and his wife Betty, MPP John Eakins and his wife Iris, and Ted Foster of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing and his wife, Jill.

Also present at the head table was Warden Jack Robinson of Hastings County and his wife Carol, Warden Doris Brick of Peterborough County and her husband Tom, and Warden Harold Bruce of Victoria County and his wife, Madeleine.

Almost every member of this year's county council was present, as were several past-wardens. All enjoyed a fine roast beef dinner, catered by Ed Pergolas, and refreshments, which were provided before and during the meal by Seagram's.

A roast for dinner

Master of ceremonies Murray Fearrey began the grilling by pointing out that the warden "had decided to let his hair grow until the warden's banquet ... and would then get a haircut ... as part of the entertainment".

Councillor Al Stok of Lutterworth township got the biggest laugh of the night, however. He pointed to a picture on the wall of the rear ends of several horses, and then quipped that "by placing us all before that picture... (it's obvious) what he thinks of us."

"I've had no experience at all with horses...except for the odd filly," shot back Warden Gambell.

"The warden is well-noted as a car salesman...a man in charge of the transfer of used and worn out vehicles," said Reeve Fearrey. "I understand one of his cars broke down tonight, on the way to his own banquet."

Job well done

Several speakers rose on a more serious note -- to commend the warden for a fine job during his year in office.

MPP John Eakins said he had "enjoyed working with everyone on the county council," and said Warden Gambell must be congratulated "for a job well done".

"Victoria and Haliburton are two counties where you are sure of a genuinely warm welcome," added Eakins.

MP Bill Scott sent greetings from Ottawa. "You in Haliburton County represent what is the best in rural Ontario," he said.

Ted Foster of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing sent greetings on behalf of the Honourable Claude Bennett. Foster said he expected legislation to be passed shortly to end Haliburton's provisional county status -- and to make it a "full fledged county".

The evening ended with dancing and music.

Kushog Lake couple upset at low water levels

by MARTIN BIEFER
Echo Editor

A Kushog Lake couple, upset with low water levels at the lake, have written a letter of protest to Environment Canada's Trent Severn Waterways office in Peterborough.

In his letter, also sent to MP William Scott and MPP John Eakins, Garfield Heyes of RR 2 Minden called the draw down of water at Kushog Lake "incredibly severe."

He said the drop -- which he estimated at some 70 inches between mid-July and October 5 -- "has not only rendered boating and dock facilities virtually useless throughout September...but has resulted in the beaching of many boats throughout the lake and a resultant great difficulty on the part of the local marina operators to retrieve these boats for winter storage."

Heyes said he has also had difficulties in "maintaining the prime of our water pump".

Lake Trout

Reached Monday in Minden, district biologist for the Ministry of Natural Resources Wayne Wilson said the drop in water level was due to a drive to ensure the successful spawning of Lake Trout.

He said that the narrows between Kushog Lake and Lake St. Nora's (an area known as Ox Narrows) was a particularly good spawning bed.

Heyes stated in his letter that lake trout spawning occurs in November -- not in September -- and added he felt strongly that the water level should not have been altered so early.

Wilson said that in the last couple of years "Trout have been observed spawning as early as September 30...and this year were in full spawn by the first week of October."

"He (Heyes) could be right in saying November... (spawning) depends on the year," said Wilson. Sometimes, he added, spawning season doesn't occur until November -- but over the last two years it has been early.

Whitewater races

Another reason Heyes cited for the low water levels was the annual kayak races (held over the Labor Day week-end) at the Minden whitewater reserves. A whitewater canoe race followed a week later, and Heyes said "the latter two events clearly co-incide with the two foot drop that occurred in early September... which was neither replenished nor in any way diminished in the intervening period."

"This is clearly inexcusable," stated Heyes.

Bruce Kitchen, a water control engineer for Environment Canada's Trent Severn Waterway system, said the added flow of water for the whitewater events came from removing stop logs at Horseshoe Lake.

Removing stop logs at Horseshoe Lake "shouldn't have had any effect at all on Kushog Lake", he said. Once the races are complete, the stop logs are placed on Horseshoe Lake, to restore its level, explained Kitchen.

Communications breakdown

According to Wayne Wilson, communications has been the big problem. He said Heyes' concerns over his dock and his pump are legitimate.

"There's no doubt that happens...there has been a problem with communication", he said. "In the future we'll try to tell them (when levels will drop) the best we can," he added.

He said attempts were made to inform Kushog Lake residents by negotiations with a local cottagers' association. However, because some members of the association's executive could not be reached, not all cottage owners were informed of the early drop this year.

"We're not going to be able to please everybody", he said. A committee of Haliburton County council ( is "trying to establish contact people for each lake" to better the lines of communication. In future, he said "people who have concerns about water levels will be able to deal with that committee."

Both Wayne Wilson and Bill Kitchen said they would be contacting Heyes by mail shortly -- and in fact Kitchen said his letter was already in the mail.

Warden Ron Gambell was never at a loss for words throughout Saturday night as he was subjected to a pre-election roasting by his county cohorts. The fun took place at the Minden Community Centre.

MP Bill Scott and his wife Betty journeyed to Minden Saturday night to attend the annual Warden's Banquet. Scott said Haliburton County residents should be thankful for their beautiful surroundings.

Home heating help is on the way

It is late spring and early autumn. Sometime after dark a specially equipped aircraft flies over an Ontario urban area. At 1,500 feet it traces a precise pattern over the sleeping city. The aircraft is part of project "Heat Save" and is in the air to help homeowners save heating dollars.

Equipment on board the plane is sensing infra-red or heat emissions from the house below. A picture, called a thermogram, is being produced and can be used to determine how much heat is being lost due to inadequate or wet insulation.

Based on the thermograms, experts from the Ontario Ministry of Energy can tell owners how much additional insulation is required throughout the house.

Anson, Hindon and Minden council minutes

The council of the townships of Anson, Hindon and Minden met October 13 for a regular meeting, with Reeve Lloyd Walker in the chair.

Present were deputy-reeve Doug Pritchard, councillors L. Cummins, L. McKnight and E. Pergolas; Road Superintendent E. Kent, MLEO representative R.C. Schell and clerk-treasurer E. Burke were also on hand.

After the minutes of the September 22 meeting were adopted, council turned to motions.

- Motions
- Moved by L. McKnight, seconded by L. Cummins that council has no objections to Glenn Wyper's application to install gabion baskets in front of his property on lot 10, concession three, Township of Anson subject to the approval of the Ministry of Natural Resources. Carried.
- Moved by D. Pritchard, seconded by E. Pergolas that council has no objections to a new business opening called Kid's Stuff in part lot three, concession A in the Township of Minden subject to compliance with all municipal regulations. Carried.

• Moved by L. Cummins, seconded by L. McKnight that the township hereby releases by quit claim deed any interest in part five of Plan 19R-1312 to Walsten Limited. Carried.

Proposed Zoning Change
Phyllis Miller and Abe Syed were present from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing and Tony Holmes of Proctor and Redfern was in attendance regarding proposed zoning by-law 82-11.

Council requested their presence to discuss the objections expressed by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs

Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing to the Ontario Municipal Board with respect to permitting permanent residential development on lakefront and similar properties.

The Ministry explained that insufficient planning studies, such as economic implications and the level of development a body of water can sustain, existed to support permanent residential development in the R4 and R5 zones. Since no studies or long term policies for the shoreline areas are in place, the development of permanent residential uses in these zones is premature.

The explanatory note in the present by-law is intended to indicate that R4 zoning applies to properties on or within 1/2 km of a publicly-maintained road and R5 applies to properties beyond 1/2 km of a publicly-maintained road.

Council agreed that the R4 zone would be changed to apply to properties having frontage on a publicly-maintained road. The R5 zone is to remain as a limited services zone for properties that do not front on a publicly-maintained road.

Several questions from the audience in attendance were directed to the persons present and an answer and discussion period followed the ministry's presentation.

Council considered circulating an amending by-law prior to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) hearing to resolve the objections received to date to by-law 82-11.

This amendment to include the removal of the R3 zone from the lakefront properties so that all lakefront and similar areas will be zoned either R4 or R5.

A decision on this matter was postponed pending receipt of written confirmation from Holmes concerning the costs involved to prepare the necessary information requested by council (i.e. changing zoning maps, preparing amended by-law as well as a report to the ministry stating the township's justification for supporting permanent residential development on lakefront properties).

- Moved by L. McKnight, seconded by D. Pritchard, that Peter Bennett be appointed as a fourth member of the committee of adjustment effective October 1, 1982 to December 31, 1985. Carried.

- Moved by L. Cummins, seconded by E. Pergolas, that council has no objection to D.J. and M. Freeman's minor variance application for permission to construct an enclosed sun porch 47 feet (14.33 m) from the water's edge in part of lot 19, concession two of Minden Township. Carried.

• Moved by E. Pergolas, seconded by L. McKnight, that the following accounts are approved for payment:

General, $280,505.32, water, $17,258.25, and sewage, $14,715.30. Carried.

- Moved by L. Cummins, seconded by D. Pritchard, that the PWD accounts be approved for payment in the amount of $36,532.18. Carried.
- Moved by E. Pergolas, seconded by D. Pritchard, that by-law 82-34, having been read a first time, considered read a second and third time and passed, being a by-law to authorize the sale of land. Carried.

The meeting adjourned at 5:15 p.m.

Haliburton Small Business Week activities scheduled

The Federal Business Development Bank, in cooperation with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, invites all Canadian businesswomen and business men to join in the activities of Small Business Week which will run from October 24 to 30.

"Managing in turbulent times" is the central theme of this annually-held week, devoted to the leaders of businesses and to those who would become leaders.

It aims to enforce small businessmen and women about the many services available to business and industry all across Canada. This particular theme was chosen as a response to our present economic dilemmas.

Never before have close, careful, informed management practices been so important to every business venture.

The prime purpose of Small Business Week is to foster an exchange of ideas and information. Activities have been organized in many cities and towns. Speeches will be given by professionals in their respective fields with a view towards offering practical solutions to the difficulties faced by owners of businesses.

In Haliburton County a Small Business Symposium will be conducted as part of Small Business Week celebrations on October 20. This day-long event, which is sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, will involve small business people and Chamber members in workshops covering various areas of interest to Small Business operators along with a luncheon meeting.

Election time

You can always tell it's election time in Haliburton County when people start to pop into the Echo office on a Monday, clutching their qualifications in one hand and their picture in the other.

As usual, it wasn't clear until 5 p.m. Monday who would be running -- nor was it clear until 5 p.m. Tuesday who was going to drop out, after declaring they would run.

Although there are the usual number of acclamations in the county this year, there are going to be a number of races. For example, in the municipality of Dysart et al there are five candidates after one councillor's seat, in Ward One.

It's good to see the democratic process at work -- since acclamations work against the principle. What's the point of having free elections when no one challenges the incumbents?

There are a few interesting twists coming up this year. For the first time, there will be a reeve and council elected in what was once the Bicroft Improvement District. Up until this year a chairman and directors had been appointed there.

Over in Lutterworth township voters will be asked by plebiscite whether they approve of licenced dining lounges in the municipality.

As well, this may be the last election in the Provisional County of Haliburton -- the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing are pushing to make Haliburton a true county, and legislation to that end is expected this fall.

Finally, this year's batch of municipal politicians will be in office for three, rather than two years. So make sure you've considered things carefully when you cast your vote November 8 -- it may be a long time before you get a second chance.

Warden's Banquet

On Saturday night about 120 guests were treated to dinner, drinks and political speeches at the Minden Community Centre.

The Warden's Banquet is ostensibly an annual social get-together -- for county councillors and their mates to chat about municipal affairs.

In fact, Saturday night turned into a roasting of Warden Ron Gambell -- all in fun of course -- and more importantly, a pre-election strategy session.

"Do you think anyone will try and run against me," one reeve confided to another. "I hope so," the same official added.

Other comments that flew by included speculations about who would run in each township, who might be named the new warden, and so on.

In a system of politics where there are no political parties, there must be some sort of party -- so why not a dinner party. One must believe that more is accomplished politically in the course of one Warden's Banquet than at any other time during the course of a municipal year.

Write a letter

Are you interested in your community? Are you concerned about its future? Are you irked by a council decision, frustrated with inflation and taxes, worried about where the world is headed? Why not get it off your chest through a letter to the editor. The letters to the editor column is a public forum and you're invited to use it as often as you like.

All we ask is that you sign your letter, and that you couch your criticisms and observations in language that is publically (and legally) acceptable.

So why not have your say? Your views may point the way to important changes.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The following information is intended to bring your readers up-to-date regarding the five year limestoning project initiated by the Ontario Ministry of the Environment.

This project has been sharply condensed into examining the effectiveness of one neutralization method only. A summer program wherein an excess of finely ground limestone is dumped onto the surface of a "dead" lake system, using either barges or aircraft has been started.

It results in a rapid neutralization of the lake system that is effective over a short time period since the particles of rock soon imbed themselves in the soft detritus on the lake bottom and become insoluble.

The method is extremely expensive and the government will undoubtedly reject the extension of this project purely on a cost extension. It is only applicable to dead lakes since the milky limestone/water mix interferes with lake biota in still living systems.

We feel that the Ministry, in rejecting the more cost-effective winter peripheral limestoning method, has done so because of political considerations.

This method presents a long term neutralizing potential. It can be used on living lakes; it is simple to carry out using our large pool of winter unemployed and although it has a slower neutralizing rate once achieved a good pH balance can be maintained for up to ten years per application. The main point is that it is very cost effective compared to the summer program. We estimate that it would cost about one third that of the Ministry program method.

In order to keep this valid and cost effective process before our governments, we are presenting our data to John Roberts of Environment Canada.

We shall report to your listeners the results of our forthcoming meetings.

To the Editor:

It has been pointed out to us that Haliburton should have more flower displays around town, especially the open lots. Therefore we would like your assistance in reaching people who would like to join and start a garden club.

Since last spring we have made attempts at starting a club, but to no avail. Are there people out there who would like to see such a project get underway? I'm sure our town fathers would appreciate input from such a group. Lets give our tourists something to admire.

If you are interested please hurry and call Madge Thompson, 457-2705.

Many thanks,
Jackie Banks

To the Editor:

An Open Letter To All
Community Organizations:

The Chamber of Commerce has just developed a sure fire way of making everyone -- visitors, residents, and cottagers, aware of the annual events that are planned each year within our county. In order to make it work we need to compile a list of the events and their respective dates for the coming year, 1983, by no later than November 1, 1982.

The list will be printed on one side of a plastic bag that will be used in stores all over the county throughout the coming year. Over four million bags are expected to be in use each with your events listed, and sooner or later everyone that enters this county will see at least one. There is no better way to let everyone know what you are planning on and there is absolutely no cost to your organization.

The only thing we ask is that you provide us with the information -- and we must have it by November 1 to have the bags circulating by the first of the year.

Space is limited so to be sure you're included set your dates and call or write us right now!

Yours truly,
Bob Stinson,
Manager

To the Editor:

A short time ago I had the experience of an emergency ambulance trip to Peterborough Civic Hospital. (Everyone involved was great - thanks!)

The point of this letter is why did I have to go this distance for surgery? While there I spoke to many people from this area (Bancroft, Gooderham, and so on) and they all felt that cost was too much for their friends and relatives to visit them. What a shame!

We have a hospital in our village. Why do we not attempt to enlarge it to a general hospital and recruit a capable surgeon into the area?

When one considers the cost of gasoline does it not make sense that we should have a facility closer to home?

When one reads of the momentary grants for the so-called arts and other institutions that should give us the lever to negotiate for a general hospital for Haliburton County.

At a recent meeting of the Rotary Club of Haliburton, Rotarian Mike Easton introduced the guest speaker for the evening, John Spaziani, general manager of "Surtronics". Surtronics is a computer company based in Peterborough. The speaker mentioned that the firm has been in business for four years and gave a brief outline on computer history and its impact on everyone's lives today. Following this he fielded questions from the club.

The Haliburton Figure Skating Club will be sponsoring their annual turkey dinner this coming Sunday, October 24, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall in Haliburton. Adults $6, children 12 and under free.

Sunny's Halo and Haliburton Huskie (the horse which is owned by Gary Vasey) are the two leading Canadian - bred two-year-old males in Ontario this year. Both ran in a showdown in the Coronation Futurity Stakes held at the Woodbine race track October 11. According to Tom Slater, writing in the Toronto Star, Sunny's Halo was a machine that literally destroyed a field of eight two-year-olds in the $162,790 Coronation Futurity. In this race Sunny's Halo sprang to an early lead and the good looking colt ran freely on the front end. He was so powerful that the interesting part of the race was for second. Rising Young Star fought off Haliburton Huskie to win second spot by 4 3/4 lengths. Rising Young Star picked up a cheque for $32,558 and Haliburton Huskie, showing third, received $16,279 to push his earnings from six races this year beyond $150,000.

Every year about this time when the Thanksgiving week-end is over we find it a little depressing and sad when we have to say goodbye to many of our good friends. A lot of them come up in the early spring, stay until Thanksgiving and then head back to Toronto or some other centre in Ontario for the winter months. I have had the pleasure to get to know most of them personally and I am always fascinated by the interest they show in local affairs and the wonderful manner in which they get involved with various organizations in the community. They are wonderful people and I can hardly wait until they move back and become year round residents. It's the new blood in any community brought in by these people with new, fresh ideas that is going to help to make the county go ahead.

Community involvement is always a topical subject -- whether it be during a discussion at one of the local restaurants or at a meeting where a guest speaker has been brought in. Many of the speakers I have had the pleasure of listening to have stressed the importance of groups and individuals working towards the betterment of the community. The community is where most of our living is done and we agree with these men that it is important to be involved. Persons get a great deal of satisfaction from being involved in local projects. One gets a great feeling of pride when he walks by something that he helped establish. The community is always in need of workers, whether they are involved in group projects or individually go out to help better the lifestyle in the area. You can make it a better community in which to live by getting involved.

Voting day for municipal elections has been set for November 8. This will be the day that you make your choice of the candidates you would like seeing run the affairs of your particular municipality. From now until election day candidates will be in one way or the other seeking your support. You will also have the opportunity at the various "meet the candidates nights" to hear what the aspirants to office have to say. As far as I am concerned there is one election tactic that I can't stand. That's when a candidate gets up at a public meeting and says "If I am elected I will work for you to the best of my ability". If this is all that particular candidate has to offer he or she shouldn't even be running for office. Let's make sure that each candidate states their platform and what they would like to see accomplished in the next three years.

On reading your article on the crimson sumac, my husband Ted looked up an old school book entitled The Ontario Readers, Second Book. The acknowledgements were dated May 1909. The book was from the T. Eaton Co. The price was nine cents!

I really wonder how many people think of this poem while looking at the autumn colours.

Indian Summer
by W. Wilfred Campbell

Along the line of smoky hills
The crimson forest stands,
And all the day the blue jay calls
Throughout the autumn lands.

Now by the brook the maple leans
With all his glory spread,
And all the sumacs on the hills
Have turned their green to red.

Now by great marshes wrapped in mist,
Or past some river's mouth,
Throughout the long, still autumn day
Wild birds are flying south

Pic of the Past

The above photo was taken at Redstone Lake on September 25, 1932 the year that Rex Boice opened his tourist lodge known as Redstone Lodge. The man pictured in the centre of this photo was William Boice who was Rex Boice's father. The other people shown in the photo were four guests who were staying at that time at Redstone Lodge. The photo which was submitted by Rex Boice of Haliburton shows the canoe known as the good ship Redstone before it took to the water. At one time William Boice and his two sons Bert and Rex would load the canoe with supplies enough to do them while they went on six week trapping expeditions.

C.O.T.A. CONGRATULATED BY DEPUTY MINISTER

It's a busy time for annual meetings. Last week the Central Ontario Travel Association (COTA) held their annual meeting in Port Hope and deputy minister John Sloan addressed the gathering.

He complimented COTA on being one of the leaders in the ministry's Ontario Tourism Association Program, and pointed to the fact that central Ontario had enjoyed an increase in occupancy this summer while most areas fell behind.

Our new ministry consultant for the area, Mike Walker, was also introduced at the meeting and Mike advised those present of his role in their business.

It is no coincidence that Mike's background is that of a management consultant because that is a direction that the ministry is now taking with their people in the field. As much as time will permit, Mike is prepared to sit down one on one with operators of tourism related businesses and assist them with planning good business management and practices.

You may make an appointment with him by calling the Peterborough office of the Ministry of Tourism and Recreation at 742-3459.

Make Your Vote Count

Two years ago at election time chambers of commerce all over Ontario launched an election awareness campaign to encourage residents to not only vote, but be aware of who they were voting for and why. The Ontario Government thought that this was such a good cause that they have now decided to take it up and are spending over $3 million to promote the same message.

It's a rather sad commentary on our society that the money we pay in taxes has to be used to encourage us to exercise our rights responsibly. It should be something we all appreciate to the point that we need no reminders of its importance.

Many Chambers run all-candidates nights in their communities to help create dialogue between candidates and their constituents. Since our chamber covers what was nine, and is now ten municipalities this is just not possible but we do encourage such activities.

Watch for the dates of these meetings in the papers and plan to attend and get to know the people who are asking for your vote. When you are electing them for three years you just can't afford to treat your responsibility lightly. "Your vote works for you every day".

Tell Us About Your Events

The Chamber has always endeavoured to help publicize local events for the benefit of the community. Finding out about these events is sometimes a real challenge in detective work for the chamber staff, however. The valuable time we spend trying to track down someone to give us details on a specific event could be much better spent promoting it if that person would call us with the information as soon as it is available.

As noted in an open letter in this week's paper the chamber is embarking on a great new idea to provide free publicity to annual events throughout the county. It's a sure way to reach the cottagers who have thus far been a big challenge in communication. The idea, however, will only work if we have the information about events in the coming year in our office by November 1. That doesn't leave enough time for "detective work", so we must rely on your cooperation. Call us today at 286-1760.

Today Starts Another Year

As this is being read by most of you, our annual meeting for 1982 will either be underway or over. As well as providing an interesting and informative day for the members it is also the one day of the year when each and every member has a say in where the chamber goes from here and who will call the shots.

At least half of our board of directors will be made up of new faces this year. New board members mean new ideas -- some good, some bad. Whatever the case we do hope you will fully support those that emerge as the decision makers in the coming year on your behalf.

We can only assume that those of you that were not present to cast your vote agree with those that did.

Queen's Park by John Eakins, MPP

Education Minister, the Honorable Bette Stephenson, should immediately withdraw Bill 127 now that the general government committee has completed its public hearings and so many individuals and groups in metropolitan Toronto and across the province have expressed their adamant opposition to the provisions of this bill.

If as she stated in her reply to my colleague Jim Bradley's question in the legislature on October 7, that the representations made before the committee "are being seriously considered", the minister would have little alternative except to withdraw the bill and begin a new round of consultation with all interested groups in the collective bargaining and financing aspects of education.

From the beginning, the Ontario Liberal caucus has found the provisions of Bill 127 to be unacceptable and has indicated its opposition at public meetings, in the House and in legislative committees.

The written briefs and oral presentations presented to the general government committee, the letters, telephone calls and petitions that have been directed to members of the legislature and the public debate on this controversial Bill have confirmed initial doubts about the advisability of implementing this legislation which represents an assault on local autonomy.

It is regrettable and unacceptable that the Progressive Conservative members of the general government committee would vote "en masse" to prevent further representations before the committee as they did when they defeated our critic's motion of October 6. That motion would have had the effect of permitting those who had contacted the committee with a desire to make representations to be heard in the proper form at Queen's Park.

Clearly, if the Minister is listening to the grass roots in metropolitan Toronto and other parts of the province, she will withdraw Bill 127 immediately. I see it as another form of regional government by way of the back door.

Report from Parliament by Bill Scott, MP

A petition was delivered to Prime Minister Trudeau on October 12. This petition took the form of news reports announcing the results of three federal by-elections and one provincial election.

Trudeau, undoubtedly, will shrug off the defeats as typical of by-elections. He would do well to ponder the significance of the results to his party and his leadership.

The federal by-election results in Leeds-Grenville, Broadview-Greenwood and Timiskaming show that in the first two the Liberal candidates may have lost their deposit. In Timiskaming the voters spared Mr. Trudeau's candidate this embarrassment and voted in a new Conservative member.

When given the opportunity to tell the Liberals what they think of their administration, Ontario voters have spoken out loud and clear. Trudeau must now see the depths to which his party has sunk. In three by-elections that he purposely stayed out of, the Liberals were wiped out. In other words, even without him the party has had the biscuit.

In New Brunswick, the Tory dominance continued. Richard Hatfield won a majority of seats -- knocking off many incumbent Liberals in the process. His support base now extends to all sectors of the province.

New Brunswick voters decided, in their wisdom, that as the federal Liberals are responsible for the conditions of the economy today there was no way they would give them responsibility for the provincial treasury as well. This must be a demoralizing event for those Liberals that still exist in New Brunswick. Imagine, if you can, a situation in which no matter how hard you work on a provincial election you cannot expect to win because of the disregard in which your federal party and our prime minister is held.

No matter how he shrugs off these indicators, rumors in Ottawa suggest that action is being taken by the Liberals. Another new economic plan is being considered, supposedly. Also, there are suggestions that the House will not be prolonged when Parliament meets again on October 27, rather the session will be allowed to continue until Christmas. This would avoid the necessity of a budget and more criticism of the government at the same time at their November annual meeting.

Isn't it a pity that it takes by-elections, forced upon the government, to produce any concrete measures to help our economy?

We should not be surprised by it as long as Trudeau is prime minister. All decisions will continue to be made on a political rather than economic or humanitarian basis. My party and I accept the responsibility of ensuring that as they rule by the ballot box so shall their rule be ended by the ballot box -- and as soon as possible.

Huskies drop two league contests

Lose to Parry Sound and Huntsville over weekend-- winless this year

by MARTIN BIEFER
Echo Editor

The fortunes of the Haliburton Huskies Junior "C" hockey club have not improved following play this week.

The Huskies are still looking for their first win in five starts this season after dropping a Friday game to Parry Sound 11-6 and going down to defeat Sunday afternoon to Huntsville 8-3 at the Dysart Community Centre.

Parry Sound 11, Haliburton 6
The Huskies got off to a good start Friday night in Parry Sound. Kevin Warburton potted a power play marker at the 2:41 mark, with help from Don Manary and big Mike Rae. The goal came on a powerplay.

However, Parry Sound levelled the count at one apiece just three minutes later, when Sean Gallagher connected with help from mates Kevin Barks and Todd Beasley...also on a power play.

A second Parry Sound powerplay goal, this time by Phil Gerhart, propelled the home team into the lead. Dave and Paul McNamara got assists on the play.

But Haliburton gamely equalized just 29 seconds later on a Dave Lennie goal. Brent McCawen got the assist, and the first period ended deadlocked at two.

The roof caved in on Haliburton in the second period. Parry Sound counted a total of six goals to two by Haliburton.

The Huskies actually opened second period scoring on a power play. Jamie Payacan scored the go-ahead goal, with help from Steve Smith and Doug Mitchell.

Then Parry Sound got two quick ones, from Dave McNamara (assists to Phil Gerhart and Todd Jackson) and Sean Gallagher (from Kevin Barks and Todd Jackson). It was 4-3 Parry Sound.

Haliburton tied the match again on a Glen Clarke goal at 4:09. Dave Lennie got the assist -- but it was the last Huskies goal in a dismal period.

Four straight Parry Sound goals, by Kevin Barks (from Sean Gallagher and John Hammell) at 9:41; by Todd Beasley (from Kevin Barks and Todd Jackson on a power play) at 12:27; by Paul McNamara (unassisted) at 18:13 and by Dennis Purdon (from Sean Gallagher and Jim Cox) with just 43 seconds left put the home team ahead 8-4 after two.

In the third Todd Beasley put Parry Sound up 9-4 at the 1:53 mark, with help from Kevin Barks and Sean Gallagher.

Haliburton showed signs of life in the third, scoring two goals in just 26 seconds. Don Manary tallied at 3:32 from Dave Lennie and Scott Rae. The Scott himself scored, with help from Glen Clarke and Jim Lee, at 3:58. It was 9-6.

At 9:49 Parry Sound got into double digits. Sean Gallagher completed his hat trick (and a six-point night) from Kevin Barks and Todd Beasley. Paul McNamara closed out the scoring at 13:54 with his second solo effort of the night.

The final was 11-6. The big guns from Parry Sound (Gallagher three goals, three assists; Barks one goal, five assists; and Beasley two goals, three assists) had done the damage.

Huntsville 8, Haliburton 3
Haliburton took to the ice Sunday afternoon looking for their first win of the year. They didn't find it.

Huntsville surged into a 3-0 lead before the Huskies could even get on the board. At 4:05 Hawks captain Andy Atkinson scored a solo effort with a man advantage. Then Dave Raney scored (from Jamie Swift) to make it 2-0, at 12:36. Bryan Eeles tallied at 15:34 (from Don Monahan and Andy Atkinson) and ran the count to 3-0.

But at 16:02 Steve Smith gave the small but vocal hometown crowd something to shout about. After taking a pass from Scott Rae, Smith stuffed in his own rebound to make it 3-1. Brent McCawen picked up an assist on the play.

However, Huntsville took some of the wind out of the Huskies' sails as Don Monahan scored from Bryan Eeles and Andy Atkinson -- with just 48 seconds to go. At the end of the first it was 4-1 Huntsville.

The Huskies made it close at 5:11 of the second when big Mike Rae pounced on a loose puck, raced in alone and beat Wes Hawkins cleanly.

Please turn to Page 7

As Mike Rae (right, foreground) and Kevin Warburton (rear) move in, Huntsville captain Andy Atkinson bats away a lofted shot from blueline. The Huntsville defence frustrated the Huskies throughout the Sunday match, played at the Dysart Community Centre.

Match-ups are set for junior and senior high school football playoffs

The stage is set for the playoffs for both the junior and senior football teams at Haliburton Highlands Secondary School.

Last Friday in Lindsay the seniors lost 22-2 to I.E.

Weldon. The loss means Haliburton Highlands will now face LCVI in Lindsay this Thursday. The winner of that game will play the winner of a Brock vs I.E. Weldon game next week.

The juniors also lost to I.E. Weldon last week, 17-7. Don Meharry scored on a 70-yard passing play from Greg Pearson for the only Redmen touchdown.

The loss means HHSS will face I.E. Weldon this Thursday in junior playoff action.

The winner of that contest will go to play the victor in a Brock vs Fenelon Falls matchup.

Huskies drop two more league contests

Huntsville goals by Scott Gemmill (from Jamie Swift) at 7:54 and Peter Atkinson (from Andy MacKay and Andy Mattice) at 9:02 made it 6-2.

Midway through the second period the Hawks, perhaps feeling over-confident with their 6-2 lead, began to get into severe penalty problems. At one time there were four Hawks in the box, and Haliburton had a two-man advantage for well over two minutes.

The Huskies were unable to mount a serious attack, despite the extra attackers... and that second-period swoon was the story of the game.

In the third Mike Rae scored his second of the night on a picture passing play between himself, Kevin Warburton, and Dan Robinson. However, the Hawks had scored at 1:36 (Mark Yarranton from Lance Webb) and tallied again at 10:36 (Bryan Eele from Kevin Pinkerton and Don Monahan) to make the final score 8-3.

The Huskies seemed to have nothing but bad luck throughout the game. They hit two goal posts, missed on a clean breakaway, and couldn't score with a two-man advantage. Several of the Huntsville goals could be considered weak ones -- but the Hawks were full value, especially defensively, for their win.

To their credit the Huskies never let up -- but rush after rush was broken up by Hawk defenders. The Hawks were also much better at getting the puck out of their own zone. The Huskies were guilty on several occasions of making bad clearing passes.

However, the flashes of good hockey throughout the contest seem to indicate the first win of the season is on the way.

FAMILY

Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins and his wife Iris were among the many guests on hand Saturday night at the annual Warden's Banquet at Minden's Community Centre.

Senior League

by Bert Harrison

Our son took eight of us to the Wagon Wheel for a Thanksgiving dinner which proved to be a delicious meal. We just sat around the Wagon Hub, had a nice visit, and really enjoyed our grub.

Service was held in the chapel Sunday night. After we had sung a couple of hymns, and Mrs. Thompson played, Murray Sisson read the lesson, and also prayed.

Then followed some nice music and singing by Phyllis Sisson. Sorry there hadn't been more there to listen.

Rev Burgess took his text from psalm 40, "he took me from the miry clay and set my feet upon a rock".

It was a very interesting talk.

Monday night, our head cook, Mark Schell cooked a Thanksgiving dinner that was really swell, and his helpers served it up wonderfully. We have a lot to be thankful for, at this time of year.

Some of the residents had relatives visiting them over Thanksgiving week - end. Mrs. Jenkins had her son and his wife; Millie Wood had her daughter and granddaughter; the Shorters had their granddaughter; Lola Prentice had relatives, and so had Mrs. Cox, and Mrs. Oliver, too. If I have missed anyone please don't feel blue.

On Tuesday morning Rev. Wicks of Minden Gospel Church conducted the service in the chapel. This October day, Barbara T. came to lead the singing, while Mrs. Taylor came to play. Rev Wicks said while Thanksgiving Day is passed, we have so much to be thankful for each day we live.

Some of our readers who see my little jests think we may be poorly treated here at Hyland Crest. Nothing could be farther from the truth, so set your minds at ease. When we are in the home or in the bus, we always fare the best.

Doris showed us some fine movies Thursday afternoon, "Come to Norway", "Blue Birds of Happiness", "Fiddle Whineydiddles", and "The Ride". I laughed so much I nearly hurt my sides.

Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Les McGuire on their wedding anniversary. Poor Leslie got the shock of his life when he asked Ina Sisson to be his dear wife! She said "before I change my name to McGuire, I want to know just what you'll require. And while my name is still Ina Sisson, there's some questions I'll ask, and I want you to listen".

"If I change my name to Ina McGuire, will you promise me you will light all the fires? Try not to pinch every last penny, and help with the babies, if we have any? I also would like to know in advance, if I marry you who'll wear the pants?"

Well, Leslie thinks, if he has to answer to this for him there won't be much wedded bliss!

Well they were married way back 1919, on an October day when the grass was still green. They have stayed married for 63 years. Don't you think they deserve three rousing cheers?

Now, Della Curry tells me by the way, she had her son to dine with her on Thanksgiving Day.

Thursday afternoon the Haliburton ladies of LOBA served us a lovely lunch today. We thank them for coming down our way.

To the voters of Anson, Hindon and Minden, on November 8, vote for the candidate of your choice!

We had a different sing-song time on Friday afternoon. Grace Coburn came as before to lead in some tunes, and Fred Ballard came to play.

It was the McGuire's wedding anniversary day. Grace read some humorous poems and sang about weddings, and such. The bride and groom said they enjoyed it very much.

Stutterers are an invisible, silent minority

Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series of articles on stuttering, submitted by former Wilberforce resident Jim Miller, Miller, who now lives in Alberta, hopes his experiences at a stuttering clinic will be of benefit to those afflicted with the problem. He reminds readers that his articles are based purely on his own "personal insight into the control of stuttering - and are not necessarily everyone's viewpoint on the subject". His aim is to make stutterers aware of the ways they can be helped...for he, too, is afflicted.

by Jim Miller

For those afflicted with stuttering, a three-week therapy clinic can be the happy ending of a long and tortuous journey.

To admit to anyone that we have a speech problem takes an enormous amount of courage - and to do something about it takes even more.

No two people stutter the same way, but therapy is basically the same for all.

All Walks of Life

Stutterers come from all walks of life. Although the cause of the speech disorder is not completely known, some researchers claim it is a genetic disorder. However, those same researchers feel the impediment cannot be passed on to children.

The ratio of male to female stutterers is five to one. Even very young children can be afflicted as they learn to talk. The disorder can be brought on in later life, through emotional upheaval at home, school pressure, or by an accident or stroke.

For those suffering from a severe stuttering problem, life can be a tragedy.

If only it was the symptoms of stuttering alone that we had to attend to - how easy it would then be to gain control! However, it is the side-effects of a life-long habit of avoiding speech where possible that takes its toll on an adult stutterer's feelings - both emotional and physical.

The well-meaning advice of our peers to do this or do that only makes the speech problem worse.

As stutterers, the initial feeling we got at our stuttering therapy clinic was one of elation - that perhaps, finally, the long search for help is over.

Doubts Dispelled

Then, as the clinic's starting date drew ever nearer, we begin to be assailed with doubts and reluctance to face the unexpected. The life-long urge to run away and avoid facing reality becomes almost an obsession.

We were assembled for testing on that fateful day. The black hate-filled eye of the video camera beams down on you, amid bright and hot lights in the testing room.

That black monster of a telephone receiver (for use in a three - minute telephone call) is yet another ordeal we must survive. On and on it goes, for three hours, until the testing is complete. At the end we can finally rest.

We were given a couple of days to get fully acquainted with our fellow clinic participants. We lived together for the next two weeks - perhaps to give each other moral support.

A lecture was given to inform us exactly what the program was about.

After being divided into groups of three, we were introduced to the staff therapists. We were to follow a tight schedule of group and individual therapy.

The clinic has been operating in Alberta since 1972. Methods are continually being expanded upon. Our course took place at a major university, and fourth-year students joined the professional staff in carrying out the program, to learn new techniques.

Lecturers hammered home on major points time and time again - that stutterers should not think so little of themselves.

Proving It to the World
We were told that contrary to public opinion stutterers are, as a whole, very intelligent people. "You are here to prove that to the world," we were advised.

The stutterers in our group came from many different ethnic backgrounds. But we were all bound together by our experiences in a life of stuttering - and by our dreams of what successes might lie ahead.

Some aspired to be teachers, lawyers, salesmen or clergymen...careers they felt their impediment might make impossible.

Each client's progress is charted - on an almost day-to-day basis.

To learn to speak fluently seems in reality quite simple, but at the same time it is demanding.

Be careful when you sign a loan: VCFA

It is important that any individual knows and understands what is printed or written on a loan agreement before you sign it. This was the key message Lindsay lawyer Alex Mortlock gave to 70 area farmers at a Victoria County Federation of Agriculture meeting recently.

Mortlock discussed the various types of loans which farmers usually obtain from different lending agencies, including banks.

Conventional mortgages and collateral mortgages deal with land and the buildings on that land. Chattel mortgages are used to cover loans for a specific piece of equipment.

The fourth type of loan is given under the provisions of Section 178 of The Bank Act of Canada. These loans are the operating loans and demand notes with which everyone in business is familiar. One of the key provisions with this type of loan is that when you sign the document you are signing over title to the property involved to the lending agency.

For farmers, this means they have signed over title to their livestock, crops, feed supplies and equipment.

Mortlock stressed that you should get someone to explain what is included in a loan document before you sign it. This can be your banker, your lawyer or other knowledgeable consultant.

Don't expect loan documents to protect you as the borrower - they are designed to protect the lender.

The real villain causing difficulties between people borrowing money and the lending agency, has been the fluctuating interest rate, which fluctuated far higher than anyone expected, concluded Mortlock.

Carew Heads Federation
Oscar Carew of RR2 Cameron was acclaimed president of the Victoria Federation of Agriculture at the annual meeting last week. He succeeds Ralph Holder of Cannington who has served as President for the past several years.

Bob Reeds of Reaboro is first vice-president and Mary Wicks of Bobcaygeon is second vice-president.

Booklet can find families

A booklet has been produced by the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross to assist in the resettlement of the Southeast Asian refugees in our province.

This booklet has been produced specifically for the use of those Southeast Asians, who have lost contact with their family or relatives. The booklet is written in five languages, English, Chinese, Khmer, Lao and Vietnamese.

People requesting assistance in tracing their relatives should contact Barbara Dawson at 457-1330.

Many wood appliances are on the market

Make sure you purchase the system that fits into your heating needs

So you've decided to switch over to a wood burning furnace. You hope to save money on your heating bill - while enjoying natural wood heat.

More and more people in the region are switching over. There are a lot of different types of wood-burning appliances to choose from.

Fireplaces can be built in, or can be free-standing (as in the case of a pre-fabricated metal fireplace). Air-circulating fireplaces not only heat a room, they deliver hot air to other parts of the home by ducts. Since the air in these ducts reaches extremely high temperatures, they must be properly installed and should never be connected to the duct work of an existing heating system.

Space heaters (also called stoves or room heaters) are intended to heat the space around them directly, with no pipes or ducts other than the flue pipe.

The two types of space heaters are known as radiant and circulating.

Cook stoves are of course one of the most familiar types of wood-burning appliances. They are not only intended for space heating but can be used for cooking. The traditional cast-iron cook stove is still common, and newer high-efficiency models have also been recently introduced.

Furnaces are simply space heating appliances connected to ducts, so that the heat is distributed to several rooms. Boilers are space heating appliances connected to piping and radiators, so that the heat is distributed to several rooms by means of hot water.

Combination wood/oil furnaces are appliances which can burn wood and/or oil, and are designed and sold as a single unit. Usually the oil burner cuts in once the wood fire has burned down (and is no longer supplying enough heat). It is an ideal way to supply heat overnight, or when residents are absent for longer than a day in cold weather.

One popular way to convert your existing furnace to a combination system is through add-on units. As the name implies the add-on is a wood burning system that connects into your existing gas or oil furnace. However, check to make sure your add-on unit complies with CSA or ULC safety standards.

Creosote buildup caused by carelessness

Creosote build-up is the biggest worry faced by owners of wood-burning heating systems. But careful operation of your stove or furnace can reduce the danger significantly.

Creosote is caused by the complex process by which wood burns. When wood is put on the fire, it heats progressively, giving off steam and some other gases. This takes place at about 280 degrees centigrade. More gases are given off until about 600 degrees - when they ignite. They burn fiercely at about 1100 degrees, but if the fuel is cool, and the updrafts slow, the gas can mix with water vapor and form a deposit of creosote - the main cause of chimney fires.

To avoid this, you want the unburnt gases to escape by faster burning of the wood itself.

Particular care must be taken at the top of the fire box (where gases are given off). The fire box should be maintained at a high temperature, with a good supply of air both at the top and at the bottom of the fire.

Fuel
Wood for the heater should not be green (this increases the moisture content, i.e. increases the amount of steam in the chimney, which can mix with gases to form creosote). If you buy wood that is green, let it dry for as long as possible before burning.

Firewood should not contain too much resin as it is likely to evaporate and go up into the chimney, where it will condense. Try and avoid softwood, except for use as kindling.

Green wood won't dry in the wintertime. Wood sheds used to be used to protect the drying wood from the rain and snow. The wood was piled up in such a way as to allow good air circulation to every piece. A helter-skelter pile does not allow wood to dry.

Most plastics burn very unpredictably. Some melt and ooze - fouling up a fire. Others send sticky black flames up the chimney, making it even harder to clean.

Plastic bottles may contain flammable vapors which could explode in the fire box - so the best policy is to avoid burning any plastic.

Stoking
Try to avoid "damping down" (reducing air supply) your fire to the point where best to burn dry wood. When a fire is used continually (and the chimney is hot) it's safe to use green wood and to run the heater with full loads and closed dampers.

Chimney fires

Chimney fires do occur - and they can be dangerous. If one starts, don't panic. Call the fire department, just in case the fire gets completely out of control. Try to cut off the air to the fire by closing doors and dampers and covering the fireplace with a wet blanket.

This sounds easy - but remember, you're working with something that is extremely hot!

Keep a careful watch on the surrounding construction - dampening it if necessary.

Watch both the inside and the outside of the house since sparks coming out of the chimney can set the roof on fire.

It's a very good idea to have a small fire extinguisher handy.

Although you can help reduce fire damage when a chimney fire breaks out, the best solution is prevention. Keep your chimney clean. Don't let it get dirty and dangerous.

After the fire is out, check the chimney thoroughly. Check for any damage to timber members near the chimney; check for cracks in the chimney outside and inside.

Fire safety essential in installation of wood stoves

The warmth and economy of installing a wood-burning furnace must be balanced against fire safety.

Past tragedies can attest to the fact that it just isn't worth taking chances in installing your new wood-burning appliance. Here are some steps to take before lighting up.

1. You must obtain a building permit when installing any wood-burning item. Check with your local municipal office to find out what regulations are in force in your area. In many areas you must obtain your permit before installing equipment.
2. Read over the manufacturer's instructions carefully before you hook up your unit. Warranties are usually valid only if instructions have been followed.
3. Choose the right spot for your unit. Don't locate it near an exit. Not only will drafts and eddies from the open door upset the draw of your fire - you will also have blocked your escape route outside if a fire occurs.
4. Can your existing chimney be used? There are several factors to take into account. The chimney's size is very important. If the chimney's cross-sectional area is not bigger than the largest flue pipe to be connected, it is not acceptable - and a new chimney should be built.

If you are connecting two pipes into your chimney, remember that the pipe from your oil-burning furnace must go in above the pipe from your wood burning stove. In other words, if your wood burning stove is upstairs and your oil furnace is in the basement, you can't use the same chimney for both.

If your chimney is being used for a fireplace, no additional wood-burning appliances can be added on. Every fireplace requires its own flue.

Metal chimneys must have a "class A" label on them, stating they are factory built.

Old masonry chimneys may be solidly built, but are likely to be rough on the inside. That means they'll be hard to sweep. However, they can be re-lined.

As well, old chimneys may have chinks or holes through which smoke can leak out. Skilled tradesmen can fix this problem as well.

Be particularly wary of old chimneys supported by timbers, rather than by brick or concrete foundations. The timbers can char or rot - which means the chimney can collapse or set fire to the house ... or both!

Chimneys on an outside wall take a long time to heat up, and usually build up more creosote. Pre-fabricated chimneys are not permitted outside an exterior wall unless they are designed for that purpose.

Chimneys inside the walls are warmer, and less likely to have creosote build up inside them - but a defect in an interior chimney is more likely to lead to a house fire.

The right equipment is key to burning wood for fuel

For efficiency and safety, anyone wishing to switch over to a wood-burning system should carefully select the right size of equipment.

How much heat you'll require depends on the size of the space to be heated and the construction of your home - for example, how well the walls and roofs are built, how much insulation and air-tightness you have, the number and size of doors and windows, and so on.

If the equipment you purchase is too large, it will probably lead to creosoting in the chimney - a likely source of chimney fires - because you will have to set it on slow burning. An appliance which is too small, on the other hand, will have to be overfired - and could overheat parts of the installation and easily cause a fire.

To find out how much heating you will require, check your old fuel bills during cold months. A rule of thumb is that one U.S. gallon of oil used represents the same amount of usable heat as 24 pounds of air-dried wood.

In metric figures, that means one litre of oil produces the same amount of usable heat as 2.8 kg of air-dried wood.

If you are now on electric heat, you'll find that about 6,000 watts per room is required. That's the same amount of usable heat as burning 5 1/2 pounds of wood each hour (2.5 kg) at 50 per cent efficiency.

Manufacturers and retailers can usually provide you with the correct information.

Enerflex pellets of compressed wood are what make this unique furnace operate -- and it works more efficiently than wood. A huge hopper filled with pellets provides enough fuel energy for a month!

All wood burns differently and provides different fuel efficiency, heat quality

The timeless beauty of cast iron and nickel grace this old Findlay woodstove -- as Shannon Moore will attest.

What kind of firewood is the very best?

You've got your stove installed and ready to go. All you need is the wood to fuel it. But which wood is best? There is no definite answer, although experience may give rise to individual preferences. Some woods are easier to light, some, give off pleasant odours when they burn, others produce a good bed of coals, others have a tendency to spark and sputter. The type of wood you burn in your wood stove or furnace will depend primarily on its availability and its cost. But you need not turn down softwood just because it burns more quickly than hardwood, especially if you will be around to tend the fire on a regular basis.

With a mixture of wood, it is possible to burn softwoods in the daytime, when the fire can be stoked every three or four hours, and hardwood at night, when a long, slow burn is desirable.

Be careful to leave lots of open space

Once you've decided on where to put your wood-burning appliance -- and when the smoke will get out -- you're ready for installation.

To avoid excess radiant heat, make sure you leave about a 36 inch space (90 cm) between your space heater and the exterior walls. To avoid fire caused by conduction make sure nothing combustible is in contact with your furnace or heater. The same is true for heat caused by convection (the rising of hot air, its colling, and re-heating).

So leave lots of space around your space heater or furnace, and keep the area free of combustible material.

Non-combustible materials (steel, iron, brick, tile, concrete, slate, glass and plaster) can be used for protection as bases.

For a space heater, leave at least 36 inches of space to walls, at least 36 inches from the top of the unit to the ceiling, and 18 inches from the top of the pipe to the ceiling. The unit should be placed on a hollow, masonry base.

The front of the unit should be at least four feet away from the facing wall.

For a circulating unit, at least a foot clearance should be left between the unit and outside walls. Again, at least 36 inches of space should be left between the top of the unit and the ceiling, and the pipe leading to the chimney should not come closer than 18 inches to the ceiling.

A four foot space is required to separate the front of the unit from the nearest facing wall, and concrete bricks are a good base. Sheet metal and asbestos is also a suitable base.

Chimney selection rules

What kind of chimney does one buy for a wood heating appliance? There are only two types of chimneys which may be considered safe if they are in good condition and properly installed. These are a masonry chimney and a factory-built class "A" chimney.

A masonry chimney will be built of stone or brick and will surround a flue liner with an air space in between. This air space may be filled with insulation. The chimney itself should have a two inch clearance from any combustibles.

Masonry chimneys should have fireclay liners. Lining an existing chimney is difficult but possible. An easier method is to add a good metal liner. Using a mirror, inspect your chimney from the bottom or clean out door and using a light bulb on an extension check it out from the top. If there are any broken liners a fire hazard is most probable since chimneys must be able to withstand the heat from normal fires as well as chimney fires. Periodical checks should be maintained since masonry chimneys can crack during intense chimney fires.

There are two types of factory-built class "A" chimneys, one is insulated with material and the other air insulated. Both are excellent types and have distinctive advantages. The insulated factory-built chimney will keep rising gases warmer with the result of less creosote whereas the air insulated or air cooled chimney will be less subject to damage during a chimney fire.

Class "A" metal chimneys have an inside liner of stainless steel and the outer casing construction may be of stainless steel or galvanized steel. For safety purposes verify these chimneys periodically for any conditions of corrosion or apparent heat marks which will indicate metal fatigue.

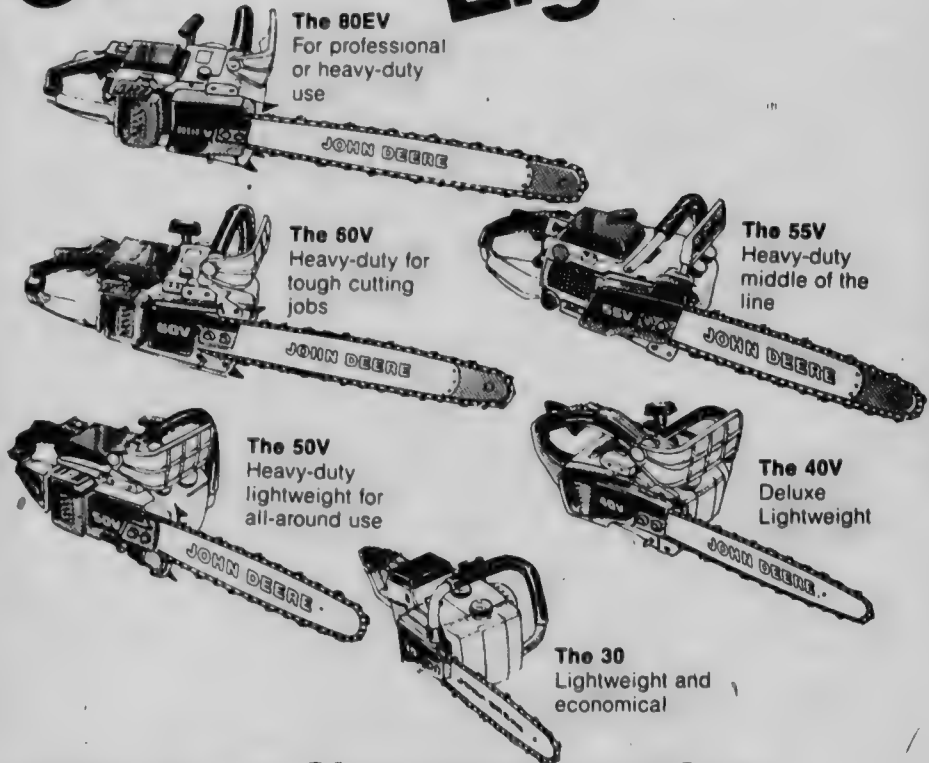

Frequent cleaning of metal chimneys will reduce the chance of chimney fires. Inspection openings must be adequately sized to enable a thorough examination from bottom to top.

Chimneys can be cleaned with a snug-fitting chimney brush or you can hire a chimney sweep who can advise you on the cleaning and soundness of your equipment.

The chimney is a key factor in a wood heating system. Consult with your dealer regarding the type and size to be used and the suitable location.

Heating with wood can be an economical way to make the cold, dreary days of winter pass a little more quickly. In Haliburton County, where many people have access to wood on their property, it is definitely economical even if the time to cut, and pile it as well is included.

Eakins speaking out on private property

I am delighted that my colleague, Herb Epp, Liberal MPP for Waterloo North, has introduced into the Legislature a private member's resolution on property rights. I will be supporting this resolution and will urge all members of the legislature to do the same.

The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms speaks in clear and ringing terms of the rights which all persons in Canada are now entitled to enjoy.

However, there is one notable omission which I believe warrants attention -- that is the right of a person to the enjoyment of property.

My colleague's resolution would have the effect of amending Section 7 of the Charter to read as follows:

"Everyone has the right to life, liberty, security of the person and enjoyment of property and the right not to be deprived thereof except in accordance with the principles of fundamental justice."

Our longstanding customs and traditions foster, as an integral part of our way of life, the concept that a person has the right to enjoyment of property, as an extension of the right to enjoyment of life and security.

Those who are guilty of trespassing upon a person's property, are guilty of trespassing upon that person's way of life. If a person's home is violated, then he or she is violated, in a very real sense, violated as a person.

The resolution which has been introduced is not an isolated proposal. It conforms with an amendment to the Charter which is being urged upon the Legislature of British Columbia, and it parallels amendments which it is proposed should be introduced in other provincial legislatures throughout Canada.

Woods, water and wildlife concerns are singled out

by RON REID Federation of Ontario Naturalists

"A man's home is his castle", or so he thinks. But if the proposals of a recent discussion paper on the provincial Mining Act are carried through, your rural castle may not be so safe. It is this legislation that controls the activities of one of Canada's largest employers, the mining industry.

Along with some minor tinkering in the act, the discussion paper recommends two major reforms. First, all rural landowners would be forced to pay an acreage tax on the mineral rights associated with their property. If you refuse to pay this annual rent (on land you thought you already owned), your mineral rights will be forfeited to the province, who can then rent them to anyone else.

Then the second change comes into play. If a mining company has leased your rights, they can notify you that they are coming on to your land to explore, and to develop a mine if they choose. You must be compensated for any direct damages, but you will have no right to stop their activities, no matter how much you want to protect your property.

Little wonder that these proposals have been put forward so quietly. None of Ontario's major conservation groups were sent a copy of the discussion paper, and few people have even been aware of its existence. Forcing landowners to pay a rent on land rights we now take for granted is not likely to be popular.

Even so, this scheme is not put forward as a way to raise revenue, but rather to help free up private land for mining development, at the expense of both landowner rights and the environment.

In the view of the Federation of Ontario Naturalists, it's ironic that the landowner groups who opposed so vociferously land use controls to protect farmland or environment features have been so silent on this issue.

Colin Newell was given the call Sunday for the second and third periods of the Huntsville-Haliburton game.

However, the Huskies came out on the short end of the stick, losing 8-3.

Briefly ...

Personnel at Minden Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated a total of 58 occurrences during the period of October 11 to 17.

In all, there were nine motor vehicle accidents with one injury, and 49 general occurrences including four thefts, and three disturbances.

On Thursday, October 14 at 2 a.m., on County Road Six, near Highway 519, in Guilford Township, Ernest Soulliere, 20, RR 1 Haliburton, was accelerating from a parking lot in his 1973 Oldsmobile when the car fishtailed and went off the roadway, striking a tree. There was $3,500 damage to the car.

Soulliere was treated at the Haliburton hospital for minor injuries.

He was charged with careless driving. The investigating officer was Constable Mike Smith.

HCFA meet covers many farming bases

by ERNEST HILLS
Amidst a backdrop of brilliant autumn colours and some of the last warm rays of sunshine for the year, the Haliburton County Farmers Association held an infrequent Saturday meeting at the Welch farm, near Haliburton village.

The subject for the meeting was "corn management: harvest and storage", a topic those in attendance found informative and interesting. The use of corn silage is not widespread in Haliburton County, so the meeting presented an opportunity to observe another facet of agricultural potential hereabouts.

Ray Welch, president of the association, graciously hosted the meeting, sharing both his time and his technical expertise with those present. Included in the meeting was a demonstration of harvesting in the field, and a demonstration of the exacting methods required for proper storage of corn silage. An error in moisture content; or the lack of proper packing to ensure no air pockets remain, could result in costly spoilage.

The past summer's farmers market exceeded all expectations despite modest beginnings, and already the ranks of the association are growing in anticipation of greater participation. Other farmers markets, across Southern Ontario have caught the consumer's imaginations and have burgeoned with rural lifestyles and community spirit.

Area farmers are already looking to next year, with an anticipated expanded period of open-air marketing. Already more land is being turned-over to cultivation for next spring of favourite crops; land is being rendered for bake-table pastries; and overall farm operations are being considered for expansion.

Thank you again to all concerned for a momentous beginning.

With the recent advent of 'private property week', and with the county heading into municipal elections, an issue of vital importance looms before area farmers as well as individual property owners.

The issue specifically is the 'tree protection by-law', as it is proposed in conjunction with the Ministry of Natural Resources land use strategy. This same by-law has just recently been enacted in Dysart et al.

The original intent of this legislation had a sound basis in providing guidelines to the timber industry in Haliburton County in order to avoid the mayhem which has marred some forest stands where these companies had been granted access. However, in its present form the by-law goes far beyond that original intention and has a sweeping application to anyone who owns more than two acres of land.

This is in direct contravention of the democratic principal of the right of an individual to own land and to Clifford Watt of Haliburton plucked this amazing tuber from his garden over the week-end. There's 13 spuds attached together here -- it looks like a bloated octopus! It weighs 2.2 pounds, and Clifford says he's never seen anything like it in the 50 years he's grown potatoes.

a self-determination as to the use of such property.

Most recently in the erosion of individual freedoms the federal government deliberately overlooked property rights in formulating our new constitution. Currently we are assailed by hundreds of pieces of provincial legislation which govern the dos and don'ts of private land use.

For area farmers the simple routines of land clearance, sugar bush maintenance (or establishment), and the cutting of firewood or timber is to be dictated to us by municipal legislation in conjunction with policy set forth by MNR.

Some responsibility has been illustrated in the overall land use strategy insofar as agricultural land is concerned. That is to say the ministry recognizes the importance of agricultural land, as outlined in the provincial foodland guidelines. However this is not enough, in the face of township and county support for the tree protection by-law, and in the absence of an agricultural land use strategy, which should be legislated to guarantee the preservation and establishment of agricultural land, and the integrity of the farmer in managing his land.

Such legislation should supercede all other legislation pertaining to land use. Beyond the concerns of area farmers, the imposition of government (at all levels) has gone too far and threatens to erode the basic right of self-determination. The fundamental difference in democratic vs totalitarian systems is the right to obtain, possess, and subsequently make a determination as to the use of 'property'. No government, and certainly no municipal government looking to expand its base of power, has the right to impose its will in that regard, or to invade the privacy of individual landowners in enforcing such nonsense.

Hunting season opens in Lindsay district woodland

by A. O'DONNELL,
Fish & Wildlife Management
Officer

On September 25 the waterfowl hunting season opened in the Lindsay district. Conservation officers checked 277 hunters who had harvested 307 waterfowl. The weather was ideal for duck hunting, however, the number of ducks per hunter was down slightly averaging 1.1 compared to 1.2 ducks per hunter in 1981.

Mallards, wood ducks and blue-winged teal made up 89 per cent of the total harvest.

Fifteen charges were laid against hunters breaking the game laws. Eight of the 15 charges were against two Lindsay area men. There were 21 warnings issued to people hunting near baited areas and/or lacking the proper permits and licences in their possession.

Geese Going

A large migration of Canada geese took place in late September with thousands of geese flying over the Lindsay area from September 26 until September 29. The migration is approximately one week early.

Controlled Pheasant Hunt

The Scugog Island controlled pheasant hunt is in operation again this year. For persons who enjoy hunting ring-necked pheasants the Scugog Island hunt located at the northern tip of Scugog Island on 450 acres of upland terrain is open Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from now until the end of November. The daily fee is $8 for a permit to hunt pheasants with a limit of two birds per day allowed. Hunter numbers are restricted to a maximum of 45 in the area at one time. The hunt is supplemented with daily releases of pheasants and it is recommended that hunters have a good bird dog to hunt.

Norland Natter

by KELLY GRAHAM
Hi! I hope people in Norland are pleased that once again we have a column of our own. My name is Kelly Graham and I am your new reporter.

Christmas may be far off but rehearsals for a local Christmas variety show are well under way. Every Tuesday at 7 p.m. several children under the guidance of Pat Potter and Grace England get together to rehearse. No definite date or time has been set for the show, but it looks as if the entertainment will be both interesting and amusing.

Remember, if you feel like a night-out there are weekly euchre games held Thursdays at the Norland community hall. The game begins at 7:30 p.m. Here's the scoop on the winners last week: ladies' high - Inga Wassell; men's high - Les Thomas; lone hands - Ken Bowins and Ann King (tie).

Also, if you have gambling in your blood don't forget the hockey pool. The October 9 winner was Jack LeCraw. The hockey pool is run by the Firemen's Association and all proceeds are used to buy fireworks. For more information call Dolly LeCraw at 454-1246.

Andrew Johnstone of Shadow Lake Road had his nephew Gordon visit from Australia. From there Gordon went on to New Jersey. He is following his favourite football team.

Also last week Buryel Kipp returned from a week-long visit with her sister in Thornhill.

Remember if you have any items you consider 'news-worthy' contact me at 454-3707.

Just about forgot! Last Saturday a trailered boat caught fire just outside The Four Seasons restaurant. Local firefighters quickly extinguished the blaze and nobody was injured.

The Canada geese have been going south in great flocks for several weeks now. What wisdom they have and how lucky they are - being able to enjoy the southern climes at no expense, thereby evading the rigors of winter weather.

There was an interesting motorcade of antique automobiles that passed through the village October 2. There were about a dozen in all, most of them Packards of early vintage. They stopped at the Dorset garage and downtown, where they were admired for their excellent condition, the fine workmanship and the high-quality materials that were used at that time. How different they are from the modern vehicles that are so flimsy and carelessly put together that they just don't last more than a few years.

The Dorset Anglican Church ladies are holding a rummage sale on October 19 at 7 p.m. in the Sunday School room. If you have anything to donate please call any of the Anglican ladies. All donations appreciated.

This month the foot clinic will be held on October 20. A very pretty wedding took place at Knox United Church October 2 when Jocelyn Baird and Phillip Cass were joined in holy matrimony with Rev Kim Wright officiating.

The bride was beautiful in a full-length white dress and the maid of honour, Cindy Earl, and bridesmaids, Cathy Oak and Sherry Brown, looked lovely in fall shades of gold, yellow and brown. The groom's man was Paul Johns and ushers were Jeff Avery and Greg Cass.

It was a beautiful, sunny afternoon and the wedding party went up on the mountain for picture-taking. The antique car buffs had gathered there which made a unique background for photos.

The reception was in the community centre followed by dancing to the music of Jeff Avery. The happy couple are residing in Huntsville.

The Dorset Senior Club is planning a euchar party October 27 at 7:30 p.m. in the Rideout community centre. Admission $1.50. Prizes and lunch will be provided. Everybody welcome.

For those interested in leaded glass work the club will again be open on Tuesdays from 2-4 p.m. The charge is $5 for members and $10 for non-members. Charges will be used to defray the cost of replacing equipment.

I guess Fall has taken a turn toward winter or maybe it is just a warning.

There was snow on the week-end, and the blue jays are back. Last year we only had two, but this year there were six at the feeder at one time. My they are greedy birds, even if they are pretty.

By the way, for those of you who like to read the Almanac, they are for sale in the stores now for 1983.

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Up-ton of Toronto spent the week-end at their home here in Minden.

It was with regret that we have heard of the passing of two of Boskung's early settlers. Mrs. May Stevens died last week, as did Miss Myra Mason.

I didn't know Mrs. Stevens very well, but the thing I remember most about Myra is the fact that no matter when I saw her on the street she always had a cherry hello and the loveliest smile. That is one thing I'll never forget. We extend sympathy to both families.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Campbell had a very enjoyable visit in the west.

Movies will be shown in the Common Room on Friday October 29. They will be at 2 p.m. for the adults, and at 7:15 p.m. for the children. If more adults do not turn out, movies for them will be stopped.

Stir into batter. Pour into greased 9x5x3 inch loaf pan. Bake in 350 degree oven.

The induction service for Rev Westhaver will be held at Minden United Church on Wednesday evening, October 27 at 7:30 p.m. After the service a friendship hour will be held in the church hall, and lunch will be served.

Dorset News

"Love is like quicksilver in the hand. Leave the fingers open and it stays. Clutch it, and it darts away."

The last long week-end of the season is over and a number of summer residents took advantage of the nice weather on Sunday to close up their cottages -- then on the miserable Monday started the trek back to the city. It was a time consuming trip with the heavy, slow moving traffic.

There was a great influx of people into the area and there was still a great deal of beauty left in the fall colours, even though many leaves had fallen. Local families celebrated Thanksgiving with guests and family members, many from out of town.

The only report I have on family members is from Mrs. Sears, who had her son and daughter and husband, her grandchildren and great-grandchildren, making a houseful.

There is to be a sewing class at the Dorset Public School, beginning Wednesday, November 3 from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. and continues for 15 weeks. This class is for anyone interested in sewing, either beginners or advanced pupils. The charge for the course will be $20 with the proceeds going to Knox United Church.

Mrs. Ursula Bryant will be instructing and there will be an orientation session on the 27th of October from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. at which time prospective pupils can decide if they wish to participate.

There is to be a Halloween costume teen dance on Friday, October 22 from 7:00 to 12:30 in the Dorset Community Centre. The dance is for young people between 13 and 18 years of age.

There will be prizes for the best costume and as well, door prizes and refreshments will be available. The charge is $3 per person with proceeds going to the community centre fund. The dance will be well chaperoned with at least three couples being present.

Grace Greenaway, Ryan and Ann Ohlmann are assisting in organizing the dance.

A group of Dorset ladies visited the Pines last week to help entertain the residents there. Marcella McKay presided at the piano and there were five ladies and men who celebrated in October. There was a beautiful birthday cake made and decorated by Jennie McLennan, and it was served with ice cream to each one and they all seemed to enjoy it. The ladies also had a chance to visit with Ernie Clayton, a former resident of Dorset, but now living at the Pines.

He appeared healthy and happy and was glad to talk to friends from Dorset.

It's nice to see the Harry Clayton home active again.

Harry and Blanche spent a couple of weeks with their daughter Janet and her family in Thornhill but are back home again.

Murray and Lorna Bradford are on a motor trip through the Maritime provinces. November 14 will be Father Bradford's last service at St. Mary Magdalene before leaving for his new posting at Thunder Bay.

H.H. One of the best things to use to tie up bundles of newspapers or anything else that you are leaving for the garbage man is old panty hose. Just cut the legs off and tie them together if necessary. They are strong and stretchy, so be sure and put the old ones in a bag for this use.

The first monthly meeting of the fall season of the Haliburton County Home Support Services was held in the municipal building, Haliburton, last Friday afternoon.

The meeting was chaired by Ivan Hunter, the new president for the coming year. Dorothy Robertson has kindly consented to continue as secretary. Her press release in The Echo will be of interest.

Marion James and her family spent the holiday week-end at the James' cottages. Marion had recently been honoured by Trinity United Church, Bowmanville, for having sung in the choir for 60 years.

The UCW also celebrated 20 years as an organization and Marion was honoured for having been its second president. We rejoice to hear this news and feel that Marion richly deserves these accolades.

Last Sunday afternoon a Glamorgan Township ratepayer's meeting was held in the community centre. Presiding was Cecil Osborne while Frank Shewring acted as secretary.

Three members of council, Jane Franklin, Bob McCausland, and Larry Hunter were present and were invited to speak.

Gooderham News

by Mary Hadley

Briefly, they outlined some achievements of the past two years. Some of those present announced their intention to run for office in the November municipal elections.

Sympathy of the community is extended to Irene McMahon due to the untimely passing of her son, Jack, aged 51 years.

Jack passed away in the Ross Memorial Hospital, Lindsay, October 11. Besides his wife, the former Betty Gill, he leaves three sons and one daughter.

Funeral services were held Thursday in the chapel of the Mackey Funeral Home.

Dallyn and Margaret Pickens have returned after a pleasant holiday in Thunder Bay where they visited their daughter, Christine, her husband, Tom, and grandson, Jamie.

Several of our summer residents have left for the sunny south. Among these are Mabel Winder and Claribel Sheehan. We hope they enjoy the Florida winter.

Don't forget the foot clinic on Monday afternoon. Noember 1. Kindly phone 447-2803 for an appointment by Friday noon, October 29. A benefit dance was held Saturday evening, October 9 in the community centre for Anne and Walter Frank who lost everything when their home was totally destroyed by fire recently.

The attendance was good and much assistance for their rehabilitation was realized. The Franks were overwhelmed by the kindness of everyone in Gooderham both at the time of the dance and previously.

They would like to express their heartfelt thanks to their many kind friends.

Starting November 3 a progressive euchre party will be held in the community centre and continue each Wednesday evening. Everyone is invited.

Congratulations to Doug Bates who has successfully passed his examination with high marks and received an interprovincial mechanic's certificate. MacDuff's Texaco now has a qualified licensed mechanic!
